Fat Cat Unleashes Political Animals

As political fervor embraces the U.S., the polls at Fat Cat are going straight to the dogs! Introducing the Fat Cat Inc. Political Animal toy series!

Political Animals let your pets participate in the bipartisan action by giving them the chance to nip and toss "George W." and "Capitol Hillary" all around the room.

Guaranteed to kick up some dust 'n ruffle feathers in your house, they're great candidates to get the "party" started. Whether you love 'em or just can't stand 'em, these political parodies offer something for everyone. Their terms are limited, so don't forget to vote by collecting your favorites!

Ellie is a three-year-old Dalmatian who lives with her parents in Murray, KY. Ellie's parents rescued her as an adult dog from their local shelter. Their love and compassion has helped ease Ellie out of her scared shell and embrace her new home. However, her FUR has also embraced everything in sight – clothes, packages, carpets, and furniture. Her mom writes, "Ellie's shedding is her only flaw, but we love her so we will just have to deal with it for many years to come." Well, we're happy to tell you that your fur invasion days are over! We're pleased to be sending Ellie our innovative new FurBuster grooming tool.

Welcome to Paw Print!

Beagle Buddies

For the first time in Westminster Kennel Club history, a beagle was awarded "Best in Show." The loveable Uno melted hearts as he barked in excitement and took his victory lap at Madison Square Garden. Winning a prestigious event such as the Westminster show always brings extra attention and consumer demand to the champion breed. So what's it like to own a pet beagle?

Beagles are one of the most popular dog breeds in the U.S. A true companion, beagles are cute, loveable and great with other dogs and children. However, they are not a breed for quiet homes. Beagles have a loud bark and loads of energy. They need to be exercised quite frequently and do not like to be left alone for long periods of time.

Whenever you are looking to add a pet to your family, it is important to determine if the breed is a good match to your lifestyle. Web sites such as PetSource.org offer an extensive list of breed profiles, detailing the advantages and challenges of each breed. Since you always want to bring a pet into a "forever home," be sure to choose one that will complement your daily routine.
